The King's Fund is a charity that seeks to understand how the health system in England can be improved. Using that insight it helps to shape policy, transform services and bring about behaviour change.

Scope

During 2010 Alison led the development of a national consultation document of GP Improvement programmes for The Kings Fund. Required stakeholder analysis, high quality written and verbal communication skills, excellent interpersonal skills, ability to assimilate complex information and skilfully present to a variety of audiences. Review included:

- identifying business opportunities for strategic collaboration and partnership working to engage GPs in service improvement
- reviewing previous and current improvement programmes involving GP providers and establishing the benefits and issues
- quickly analyzing complex information and identification of risks

Outcomes

A national service review with key with recommendations on business opportunities and evidence on the most effective methods for engaging GP providers in service improvement.
